ATSE is Australia's foremost impact network for leading
applied scientists,
technologists and engineers.

We are an independent, non-government organisation and registered charity led by a diverse Fellowship of over 900 future shapers who strive for a sustainable and prosperous Australia.

Our Academy celebrates excellence in STEM, by appointing prestigious Fellows, awarding emerging innovators and equipping the next generation with skills to build a better Australia and world.

We are an authoritative and independent voice to government and our world-class STEM Career programs demonstrate how to tackle our most urgent challenges.

Since 1975 the Academy has surged from 65 to over 900 Fellows who are responding to Australia's most urgent and complex challenges – from climate change, pandemics, food and water security to stewarding a waste free future and addressing the STEM skills shortage.

SHOWCASE

New Fellows 2023

Thursday 26 October
National Portrait Gallery
Canberra, Australia
+ live-streamed

NEW FELLOWS

A parliamentary science champion, an international force for tackling climate change and computer science advocates were among the 27 tech trailblazers and influential innovators of Fellows elected in 2022 to the Academy.

Elected by their peers, ATSE Fellows are leaders in applied science, technology and engineering and we celebrate their exceptional professional contributions to Australian STEM innovation.

Join us as we welcome our 2023 Fellows elected by the Fellowship on the basis of excellence, accomplishment, and fit with a modern and future-facing Academy – ensuring they contribute to the Academy's mission of helping Australians understand and use applied science, technology and engineering to solve complex problems.

GALA DINNER

ATSE Awards 2023

Thursday 26 October
National Arboretum
Canberra, Australia

ATSE AWARDS

In 2022, some of Australia's leading engineers and inventors were recognised for building a better Australia through technological innovation. Solving sustainability problems, protecting healthcare providers from COVID-19, and using technology to train next-gen pilots were among the achievements of award-winning STEM innovators recognised at our annual awards ceremony.

The ATSE Awards 2023 will continue a legacy of bringing together Australia's brightest minds across STEM who are collaborating for a better Australia and world. The evening will celebrate the 2023 ATSE Awards winners in the following categories:

- > Clunies Ross Awards
- > Batterham Medal for Engineering Excellence
- > ICM Agrifood Award
- > Ezio Rizzardo Polymer Scholarship
- > David & Valerie Solomon Award
- > Traditional Knowledge Innovation Award
- > ATSE President's Medal
